The renovation project of this Mallorcan stone-built townhouse on the outskirts of Sóller presents a charming opportunity for restoration. With its picturesque Mallorcan stone facade, small courtyard, and being just a few minutes' walk from the town center, the property is in need of serious renovation but holds immense potential. Divided over four floors, the house offers beautiful views from the bedrooms, nestled in a quiet neighborhood. This location provides plenty of options for reimagining the space, blending historic charm with modern amenities, making it an exciting venture for those looking to create a unique and inviting living space.
